President's New Year message to National Members

Dear Colleagues,

It is with great pleasure that I wish you all a happy New Year full of happiness and success in your personal and professional lives.

Two months ago, I took up the presidency of WFEO after the successful General Assembly meetings and the World Engineers Summit in Singapore. On this occasion, we reviewed the Federation's performance and achievements. We set new objectives and priorities for the upcoming period and committed ourselves to implement them. To this end, we validated the work of the working groups, we formed new ones and we assigned specific missions and tasks to the members of the Executive Council. I identified a group of fellow engineers to advise me and they expressed their willingness to help me to their best ability.

As I stated in Singapore, I shall build on the projects of my predecessors to reinforce the commitment of national and international members, bring new associates and partners to the Federation and in particular I wish to send a message to developing countries that have small engineering associations or don't have one yet that WFEO is looking forward to assist them and to have them on board in the framework of a special initiative.

I shall of course continue to support and guide the Standing Technical Committees towards spreading their information among our members.

My flagship initiative remains the World Engineering Forum and I shall do my utmost efforts to achieve its implementation.

Finally, you will agree with me that suitable and momentous expertise exists in WFEO. All we need to do is to share it. I shall be writing to you soon to work towards this end.

I wish you again a very happy, peaceful and successful New Year.

Best regards,

Marwan Abdelhamid
